MUSIC NOTES

(Edited by John Beck)

Sunday afternoon, Nov. 21, at 3:30 central time the choir and organist of the Methodist church will give their annual Thanksgiving vesper service, assisted by the following soloists: Miss Sara Evans of Seville, soprano; Mr. Fred Bohley, baritone; Mr. Chas. Jauch of Baldwin-Wallace, pianist and Mr. Harry J. Lincoln of Brunswick, clarinetist.

Wednesday evening, Nov. 10, St. Paul's ladies will give a musical at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Baldwin. A well known harpist of Akron, assisted by two soloists, will give the evening's program.

Next Sunday afternoon at 3:30 central time the second organ recital at the Berea conservatory will be given by Prof. Reimenschneider.

Master Kenneth Sedgwick gave several violin selections at a party given to the Junior Y. M. C. A., group Friday evening and Leo Bartunek favored the boys with several fine piano solos. Fred Bohley sang several selections. Dr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Smith entertained the boys in a royal manner.

Mr. Ralph Harrington and Mr. Fred Adams have positions as violinist and celloist in the new theater at Lakewood.

The pupils of Miss Florence Sipher gave a recital at her home on last Saturday afternoon. Piano and violin selections were given.

Miss Iva Bowman sang a beautiful solo in the church of Christ at the morning service Sunday.

What promises to be a rare musical treat will be the concert next Wednesday evening at the Methodist church by the Ricardi Fadettes of Chicago, an orchestra composed of ladies. The concert will be under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid society of the above church.

MYSTERIOUS ASSAULT

Clay Halderman, 32, son of Postmaster Eugene Halderman of Sharon Center, was struck over the head with a club Monday night when he went to the stable to investigate mysterious noises. He was rendered unconscious by the blow and was left lying back of the horses where he was found by his sister, Miss Nell Halderman, half an hour later.

Mr. and Mrs. Halderman were away from home and the young man and his sister were alone in the house. Clay had retired to his room but hearing mysterious sounds in the vicinity of the barn, he came downstairs, secured a flashlight and went to see if all was right.

He was gone for almost half-an-hour when his sister became alarmed at his prolonged absence. Her calls failed to bring a response and she finally mustered up sufficient courage to go to the barn to ascertain if anything was wrong.

Miss Halderman found her brother lying back of the horses. Unable to rouse him, she hastily secured aid and the unconscious boy was carried to the house.

Dr. R. L. Johnson, who was summoned, found that young Halderman had not been kicked by a horse as was supposed but that he had been struck over the head. Scratches on the side of his face indicated that he had been struck after he was down, presumably by a fork.

The boy remained unconscious for 2½ hours. When consciousness returned he could tell little as to what happened. His condition now is much improved. He says he saw a man outside the barn and that when he entered he saw a second one back of a partition. He did not recognize either of them and can give only a vague description.

It will be recalled that young Halderman some months ago shot George Swigert, who was in the act of robbing the Halderman store. Swigert finally recovered from the wound but the Haldermans refused to prosecute him. The case was taken up by county officials and Swigert was given a suspended sentence. Swigert is now in the West and the Haldermans feel certain that the assault on their son had no connection whatever with the Swigert affair. They will advance no theory as to the cause of the assault.—Wadsworth Banner Press.

BUNNY NOW HAVING HIS OWN TROUBLE

With the rabbit season which began Monday, the state fish and game department is out with a list of cautions and commandments for the trailer of poor bunny. An endless number of don'ts is included in the list of recommendations which Chief Fish and Game Commissioner John C. Speaks prepared.

He urges above all things else the slogan of "safety first," and due respect on the part of the hunter for the wishes of those on whose property hunting is to be carried on. Rabbits are especially plentiful this fall, he says, and adds that if the hunters respect the rights of the farmers there need be little fear of friction. The rabbit season will be on until January 1.

Special stress is given by Speaks to the suggestion that whenever the hunter desires to pursue game on lands other than his own, he be sure to get first the consent of the land owner. The mere fact that there may be no anti-trespass signs in view is not sufficient to warrant the belief that hunting is permitted, it is pointed out. The hunter is strongly advised to get an affirmative and definite permission. Only those persons who hunt upon their own property or property they rent may seek game without a license. Naturally their children are also exempted. All others are asked by the state commissioner to exhibit their license whenever they are requested to do so by well-meaning persons.

"Carry your license always with you," says the statement of the commissioner to the hunters at large. "Don't shoot while near houses, barns or other buildings, near stock or where teams are at work. Look out for men who are husking corn or otherwise employed in the fields. Do not cut or injure wire or other fences, or property of any kind."

The statement then advises the hunter as to the manner he should carry his gun in climbing fences. The best way in going over fences is to withdraw the cartridges. In going through briars, underbrush or high weeds, the muzzle always should be well elevated. In fact, it is suggested that when the chance to shoot is not immediately expected, it is always better to carry the gun "broke." An especial warning is given against placing loaded guns in autos, wagons or other vehicles, or leaving such guns in any place where the "didn't know it was loaded" excuse might possibly have to be used. The hunting season for rabbits this year is the most extensive in years. The old season used to begin November 15 and end December 4.

WILL FIGHT OPINION

As noted in last week's Sentinel Judge Miller of Celina sitting in the Allen county common pleas court declared unconstitutional the act of the general assembly directing the manner of election of such boards. The effect of the finding, if sustained by higher courts, virtually would be to destroy the rural school legislation passed during the Cox regime, and which revolutionized the country school system. Appeal will be taken to the appellate court and later to the supreme court.

In giving his decision Judge Miller declared that members of county school boards were "officers" of the county, and that, as such, they must, under the constitution, be chosen by the electors, and not by the president of the village and township school boards of the county as prescribed by the general assembly.

All acts of the board have been illegal and the body will disappear from the county school system, if Judge Miller's opinion is sustained by the supreme court.

Attorney General Turner has put on his fighting toga and is preparing a defense along the lines that school board members are not county officers, within the meaning of the law and hence not subject to selection by a vote of the electorate. Upon the decision of the higher courts hinges also the position of county superintendent.
